

2011 Membership Application

Individual Membership

The Canadian Blood and Marrow Transplant Group (CBMTG) membership is available to all professionals in the Blood and Marrow Transplant field. As a member of CBMTG, you will receive exposure to and interaction with the Canadian network of multi-disciplinary BMT experts. CBMTG membership allows you to express your views via ongoing dialog with other members of your profession to impact the changing face of BMT in Canada. In addition, CBMTG members have an opportunity to participate in and develop research within the transplant arena.

As a CBMTG member, you are entitled to benefits, including:

- Access to the members-only section of the CBMTG website including:
 - Discussion groups on BMT-related topics
 - Access to BMT documentation, including lectures and other materials
 - Updated member directory (alphabetical, geographical, and by discipline)
 - Updated information on upcoming meetings
- Access to the quarterly CBMTG Newsflash with information updates on the current happenings in Canadian BMT
- Opportunity to get involved in CBMTG Committees, including but not limited to the multidisciplinary committee, lab practices committee and clinical trials network committee
- Member-only rates for educational webinars of practical relevance to the multidisciplinary areas of BMT
- Member-only registration rates for CBMTG meetings
- Opportunity to apply for CBMTG small budget research grants
- Opportunity for ongoing dialog with other members of your profession on issues related to transplant
- Participate in and develop research within the transplant arena in Canada

CBMTG Physician/PhD Membership ($130 CAD): Physician/PhD membership is open to applicants with major and sustained interest in blood and marrow transplantation who hold an MD, PhD or internationally equivalent degree. Active members pay dues and have all privileges of the Society including the right to vote, hold office, and serve on committees.

Allied Health Membership ($110 CAD): Allied Health membership is open to applications who are members of an allied profession (e.g. nursing, pharmacy, laboratory technology, social work) or members who hold a leadership position in a hospital-based blood and marrow transplantation program, affiliated university-based laboratory program or non-profit allied health care provider. Active members pay dues and have all privileges of the Society including the right to vote, hold office and serve on committees.

CBMTG In-Training Members ($80 CAD): In-Training membership is open to individuals registered in a relevant Baccalaureate, MSc, PhD, MD or internationally equivalent post graduate training program. An In-Training Member must provide a letter from their supervisor verifying their status and briefly describing their program of study. Active members have all privileges of membership, except the right to vote or hold office.
